

DOVETAIL RESOLUTIONS, LLC

Jane Beddall, MA, JD, is founder and principal of Dovetail Resolutions LLC, a mediation and consulting firm focusing on preventing and resolving damaging conflicts in ongoing valued relationships, such as those in family businesses and extended families. She is also a conflict coach, employing the CINERCY® conflict management coaching model. Jane is the host of the podcast Crafting Solutions to Conflict, providing a practical and positive perspective on conflict, available through popular listening apps.

She serves on the Advisory Board and faculty of the New York City Family Enterprise Center (NYCFEC). She is member of the Purposeful Planning Institute and the Family Firm Institute, holding FFI Certificates in Family Business Advising and Family Wealth Advising. Jane has taught at the University of Connecticut School of Law and at the University of New Haven (Alternative Dispute Resolution). She is past president of the New England Chapter of the Association for Conflict Resolution and past co-chair of the Alternative Dispute Resolution Section of the Connecticut Bar Association.

In 2014, Jane received The Honorable Robert C. Zampano Award for Excellence in Mediation, which recognizes and celebrates leadership, initiative, and creativity in mediation in Connecticut. Jane enjoys speaking to business, legal, and other groups about mediation and conflict management, as well as writing about these topics.

She graduated from Trinity College (B.A. Economics) and then served as a VISTA volunteer in rural Colorado. She received her law degree, cum laude, and her M.A. in Public Policy Analysis, with a concentration in conflict resolution, from the University of Pennsylvania.

33 Dixwell Ave. #214, New Haven, CT 06511
203.887.1160, www.dovetailresolutions.com
Jane Beddall, M.A., J.D., jb@dovetailresolutions.com